Light-Fingered Gentry

A GALVANIC NOVEL

By the author of "The Second Generation," etc.

DAVID GRAHAM
PHILLIPS

Illustrated. 12mo, ornamental cloth, $1.50

In his latest work, this brilliant novelist has included more of romance than ever before without any sacrifice of strength. It is first and foremost a love-story against a lurid background of giant capitalists in death-grapple. Senator Albert J. Beveridge has recently declared David Graham Phillips to be

"The master American novelist of today."

The Popularity of THE BRASS BOWL

is increasing as its readers are increasing. We wish to apologize to the trade for not filling orders for this book more promptly. Although we have printed several large editions during the summer, at no time have we been able to take care of our customers as we should like to do.

¶ The orders from all parts of the country for The Brass Bowl indicate that there will be a heavy demand for it for the remainder of the year.

¶ The Brass Bowl is now being dramatized for stage production and a prominent New York manager has contracted to produce it within the next six months.

¶ Please send us your orders now and we promise to take care of them more promptly than we have been able to for the past few months.

TO THE BOOK TRADE

We were the first American publishers to recognize whose "ALTON OF SOMASCO," "THE DUST OF CONFLICT," etc., we have published with great success, and whose "WINSTON OF THE PRAIRIE" promises to have an unusually large sale.

Our confidence in this virile writer has been backed by heavy expenditures in advertising, etc., and the market we have created for Bindloss novels has tempted others. An unauthorized edition of an early novel having been announced at $1.00 net, we have prepared an attractive edition at 50 cents list.

We intend to see that the interests of those properly concerned are protected in all such matters affecting us, and we give notice that we shall sell our editions at lower prices than those of any piratical reprints, no matter what loss may be involved. We are the sole authorized publishers of Mr. Bindloss in this country, and we have contracted for new novels by him to appear during 1908 and subsequently.

Nursery Rhymes from Mother Goose

With Drawings by GRACE G. WIEDERSEIM

A new and quaintly humorous interpretation of Mother Goose, in Mrs. Wiederseim's whimsical and fascinating drawings. There are nine full-page drawings reproduced in full colors and many other pages in tint and black and white. All the regular Mother Goose rhymes are in this collection, which is certainly the most original and satisfactory interpretation of this classic that has appeared for years.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO., Publishers, BOSTON

To the Trade :

You will doubtless be interested to learn that the Ladies' Home Journal has asked permission to print in full the first chapter of Eliza Calvert Hall's "AUNT JANE OF KENTUCKY," entitled "Sally Ann's Experience."

This will appear as a two-page feature in the October number of the Ladies' Home Journal, headed by President Roosevelt's recommendation. The frontispiece of the book and the chapter illustration are also reproduced, and the editors have supplied the following introductory statement :

"Permission to reprint this first chapter from 'AUNT JANE OF KENTUCKY,' by Eliza Calvert Hall, referred to by the President, has been obtained from the publishers, Messrs. Little, Brown & Company, of Boston--which chapter, however, is not more interesting in reality than the other eight chapters of this book so brimful of an understanding of country folk."

This ought to whet the appetites of the 5,000,000 or more readers of the Ladies' Home Journal for the entire book. How is your stock?

LITTLE, BROWN & CO., Boston

P.S.--We have just printed a sixth edition, of 5,000 copies, of "AUNT JANE OF KENTUCKY."

Mr. Live Bookdealer,
Everywhere,
U.S.A.

Chicago, 21 Sept., 1907.

Dear Sir:-

The full page advertisement shown by reduced facsimile on opposite page will be published for YOUR benefit.

To print it in The Saturday Evening Post (4,000,000 readers), The Home Magazine (1,000,000 readers) and such mediums of wide national circulation will cost many thousands of dollars. It is the largest and most expensive single advertisement ever placed by any general book publisher.

Are YOU preparing to get YOUR share of its benefits?

It will be read by millions and millions of people everywhere—some of whom are YOUR customers.

Though thousands of bookdealers carry our line, only about 1500 sold the bulk of it last year; only 1500 profited as they should from our costly advertising campaign; but each one of that 1500 by his progressive cooperation "got the money" in his territory—though we intended it to benefit all dealers.

Can you afford not to join this money-making 1500?
Act promptly.

Connect YOUR window, store and counter display with OUR advertising. It will pay YOU well.

We will send without cost to you, on request, most attractive posters, show cards and cut-outs, together with photographs and suggestions for making displays.
Write us now.

YOUR cooperation will back up our advertising and concentrate its benefits on YOU in your locality.

Yours for business

Reilly & Britton

N.B. To those bookdealers who are not our customers we will gladly send, on request, our illustrated catalog—and samples of such publications as are of interest—see list on opposite page.

Reilly & Britton's Teddy Bears Books are the publishing "hit" of the year.

THE WAY OF A MAN By EMERSON HOUGH

A great and wonderful novel

Illustrated
by G. Wright

By the author of
"The
Bubble"

THE scene of this novel is laid mostly in the West during the time of the great westward movement previous to the Civil War, although the story opens in Virginia and ends there. It is full of strange adventure, of fights with the Indians, of close escapes from perils on land and water, of love and treachery, of life in the wilderness under such conditions as confronted the first Man and his Mate. A tale of stirring incident on every page. The characters are marvelously drawn, and the period in which the story is placed is reflected with wonderful spirit—full of power, passionate life and human feeling. This great novel will be read alike by those who read for the story's sake and those who appreciate good literature. It is the greatest piece of work that Mr. Hough has ever done.

Color and gaiety and excitement sparkle from every page of this delightfully thrilling romance, the best thing The Williamsons have done. The scenes are Spanish, contemporary with the recent Royal marriage, and there are adventures innumerable in a case of love at first sight and a motor dash across Spain in pursuit of the heroine, the charming Lady Monica, in the Princess Ena's suite. A magnificent description of the coronation bull-fight fittingly culminates this brilliant story.

Guide to Modern Cookery

By M. ESCOFFIER

Chef of the Hotels Carlton and Ritz, London

M. Escoffier is the foremost representative of his art now living. His cook-book will naturally take precedence over all others in this field. Car of Destiny of "The Princess Virginia," "Lady Betty," Etc.

C. N. and A. M. WILLIAMSON

A graceful, polished romantic comedy—Anthony Hope at his best.

Helena's Path

By ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda," "The Dolly Dialogues," etc.

A deliciously fanciful comedy that compares evenly with the author's famous "Dolly Dialogues" in prettiness and bright wit. Lord Lynborough is denied by the young and beautiful Marchesa Helena the use of a path across her estates leading to a bathing beach. The path thus becomes a bone of bitter contention. The developments which ensue are handled with exquisite finesse and charm by this master of the spirit of high comedy and romance. With frontispiece in colors. $1.25.

Pinafore Palace

Edited by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Nora Archibald Smith

A new addition to McClure's Library of Children's Classics, following in order "Golden Numbers" and "The Posy Ring." The volume is made up of nursery rhymes for the very littlest folk, taken from Mother Goose and other delightful sources, including all the masterpieces of nursery lore. $1.50.

Latest Tales of Real Life

EDWARD A. STEINER

Author of "On the Trail of the Immigrant"

The Mediator

A Tale of The Old World and The New

Prof. Steiner is at his best in portraying this passionate Jewish boy from Russia-Poland, as he passes through the Roman-Catholic monastery, up to the American ideals, and finally through the crisis of his romance in the new world. He stirs one with his pathos and human and fiery action which only the author with insight can reproduce.—$1.50.

W. J. DAWSON

Author of "Makers of English Fiction"

A Prophet in Babylon

A Story of Social Service

With that literary skill of which the author is master, there is in this story a vivid presentation of the great need of the unreached masses, and the budding and growth of a movement effective in the solving of a most difficult problem.—$1.50.

RICHARD S. HOLMES

The Maid of Honor

A story of living interest, a romance of purpose where plot and action keep the reader alert. The young preacher is no automaton, but a man of flesh and blood and purpose. The heroine, however, is the central figure, engaging the reader's most sympathetic and absorbing interest.—$1.50.

WINIFRED KIRKLAND

Polly Pat's Parish

Illustrated by Griselda M. McClure

This is a first work of a first writer of great promise. Polly is a distinct personality among heroines and her quartet of little brothers and sisters—"the four-in-hand"—she calls them, add plenty of unexpected variety to the story. There is a dash and humor, a literary and suggestive art about the telling that defies description.—$1.00.

FRANKLIN W. CALKINS

Author of "Two Wilderness Voyagers"

The Wooing of Tokala

"Well told, with ingenuity and cleverness in the construction of the plot, and with a simplicity throughout that adds to its charm. . . . Doubly interesting by reason of the author's intimate knowledge and truthful presentation of Indian life, customs, and character."—New York Times Saturday Review.—$1.50.

WILFRED CAMPBELL

Ian of the Orcades

"A stirring tale of the North Sea coast of Scotland in the days of King Robert the Third. It is full of adventure and excitement, with much poetic feeling in its descriptions. A pretty love story is wound in and out among the clashes at arms."

—Pittsburg Post.—Illustrated, $1.50.

DILLON WALLACE

Ungava Bob

A Tale of the Fur Trappers

Mr. Wallace's accounts of his explorations in the frozen interior of Labrador have made him well known as an author. In this his first attempt at fiction he gives a tale of a young trapper in the far Frozen North. It goes without saying that he describes life that he has seen, and vividly pictures the elusive and mysterious Nascaupsee Indians of the Interior of Labrador and Ungava. The story is heart stirring for young and old from beginning to end.—Illustrated, $1.50.

CHICAGO: 80 WABASH AVE.

ANCESTORS

By Gertrude Atherton

Author of "Rulers of Kings," "The Conqueror."

A GREAT American novel by the foremost American novelist. Mrs. Atherton has chosen to present California with all its ancestral power and beauty embodied in a descendant, a woman. The story is powerful with the power that grows out of individual characters, of whom the most distinguished is this high-bred young girl, claiming in ancestry the best of Spain, America, and England. Visiting kinsmen on the other side, she meets a young Englishman, her cousin, who is clever and dominant, and well on the road to political success, when tragedy in the lives of others shuts the door of his career. Then the woman persuades him that his duty lies in America. He ignores a title, ends a mistaken love affair, goes to San Francisco, and begins to study American people and affairs. With the utmost delicacy of penetration and analysis, Mrs. Atherton shows these two people inevitably drawn together, through sheer charm and strength of individuality: the man attracted, yet critical; the woman cherishing her freedom and coolly averse to love. Mrs. Atherton has done for old San Francisco what Hugo did for Paris, what Dickens and Thackeray did for London. The city, with its teeming life, glows and lives in these pages, and is really as great a part of the drama as are the characters in the foreground, leading to a moving and impressive climax in the San Francisco earthquake. That stupendous disaster—its wild scenes of fire and destruction—the peculiar terror it struck into the hearts of the people—are described with the intensity of the writer's own memories, for she was in San Francisco and saw it all. The greatest work Mrs. Atherton has done is Ancestors.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. publish to-day Randall Parrish's new novel, "Beth Norvell," with a frontispiece, in four colors, by N. C. Wyeth, which will rank with the strongest and best-written stories of the year.

A. M. ROBERTSON, San Francisco, Cal., will publish on October 10 the third edition of "The Testimony of the Suns, and other poems," by George Sterling, whose work stands high in the estimation of competent critics, and who seems to be favored by the public, which has already taken up 2000 copies and for whom another 2000 is now being made ready.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have been obliged to postpone publication until next month of Fred. M. White's new story, "The Nether Millstone," which was announced to be ready on the 21st inst. They have just ready a sixth edition (of 5000 copies) of Eliza Calvert Hall's "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," the sale of which received an added impetus through the cordial recommendation of President Roosevelt.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 28th inst. an exquisite holiday edition of Longfellow's "Hanging of the Crane," with colored illustrations by Arthur I. Keller; "Mother Goose in Silhouettes," a holiday book for children, with illustrations by Katharine G. Buffom; "Friends and Cousins," by Miss Abbie Farwell Brown; "Life and Times of Stephen Higginson," by Colonel Thomas W. Higginson; "The Temple of Virtue," by the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham; Part I of Volume II. of Professor Charles S. Sargent's valuable work on "Trees and Shrubs;" and "Emerson's Essays" in the Riverside Literature Series.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just ready a new volume in Ruel Perley Smith's Rival Campers Series, entitled "The Rival Campers Ashore." The leading characters in the two previous books are active sharers in the events Mr. Smith has chronicled in his new book, and interest is enhanced by the introduction of a girl, who is full of life and fun and contributes her full share to the good times the boys can always be relied upon to obtain from every occasion. Like the other volumes in the series, the book is full of wholesome, out-of-door atmosphere, and the boys spend a large part of their time in spirited athletic contests which always appeal to healthy boys and girls.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have just ready "The House of the Vampire," George Sylvester Viereck's first work of fiction, symbolic of literary vampirism in much the same way that Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is symbolic of the dual nature in man. They will publish shortly Thomas L. Masson's new book, "A Bachelor's Baby," which suggests in general contents and appearance his successful book of two years ago—"A Corner in Women." The forthcoming book contains Masson's very latest humor, which means his very shrewdest and best work. The book has been freely illustrated by Flagg, Richards, Hanna, Crosby, Budd and other favorites, and has a cover of baby faces by Blashfield. Other books nearly ready are "The Blue Ocean's Daughter," a story of Revolutionary times by Cyrus Townsend Brady, with illustrations by George Gibbs; also, "Wild Animal Celebrities," by Ellen Velvin, which relates the life stories of actual animals now living and on exhibition in various zoological gardens and menageries throughout the world.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The prices of fiction (not net) published under the rules are preceded by a dagger†. The prices of net books not covered by the rules, whether published by members of the American Publishers' Association or not, are preceded by a single asterisk, and the word net follows the price.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fo. 48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Andersen, Niels Christian, M.D. Evolution of the human soul and the future life scientifically demonstrated. St. Paul, Minn., Andersen Publishing Co., [1907.] c. '06. 202 p. D. cl., $1.

Seeks to prove that the evolution of the human soul is just as real as the evolution of the body; that only from the structure of man, physical, intellectual and psychical, can science solve the problem of the soul of man and a future life. Facts in scientific and religious history are cited to prove his arguments. Author evidently believes that reincarnation is a working out of the theory of evolution.

Auchincloss, W: Stuart. Christianity and the Britons. N. Y., William S. Auchincloss, 1907. 18 p. O. pap., 25 c.

The author of the "Book of Daniel unlocked" and other pamphlets aims to show "Christianity had a foothold in Britain some 400 years before St. Augustine's day and continued to hold its ground under the same auspices—the Roman Catholic church—for more than 900 years after his arrival." He offers a sketch of the progress of the Christian churches from the end of the first century to the beginning of the twentieth to sustain his assertions.

Auchincloss, W: Stuart. The mask of Eddyism. N. Y., William S. Auchincloss, 1907. 8 p. O. pap., 25 c.

A severe criticism of Mrs. Eddy's "Science and health" and the system described in it under the name of Christian Science. The writer says he would not object to its being called "Eddyism," "a word which everyone understands," but earnestly protests "against the use of those words in which the system has so long masqueraded before the public eye."

Bacheller, Irving Addison. Eben Holden's last day a-fishing. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 60 p. il. S. cl., $1.50 c.

The author of "Eben Holden" makes his old hero the central figure in two new pictures—in one he goes a-fishing in June, revealing himself a true lover of good sport, old though he is, and shows that time cannot change his gentle humor, his caustic wisdom, and his simple kindness. The other picture, of Christmas-time, is in Eben Holden's old fashioned country home.

Bacon, Mrs. Josephine Dodge Daskam. The domestic adventurers. N. Y., Scribner, 1907. c. 221 p. il. D. cl., $1.

Three young women workers after living seven years in small city quarters decide to take a whole house out of town. The story tells of the servant trouble and describes five separate cases in detail. There are two devoted men friends, and the narrator is constantly wondering to which of them the men will finally drift. The clearing up is a surprise.

Bangs, J: Kendrick. Alice in Blunderland: an iridescent dream; il. by Albert Levering. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1907. c. '06, '07. 8+124 p. D. cl., 60 c. net.

Many vexatious questions that are now agitating the Republic, such as the regulation of trusts, municipal ownership, or the troubles of corporations are here solved by everybody's old friend "Alice," who went into "Wonderland," and the "White Hare," and the "Hatter." The conversations and arguments are extremely funny and far above a child's entire comprehension.

The art primers of the Pennsylvania Museum and

School of Industrial Arts (of which series this is an issue) are designed to furnish, for the use of collectors, historical and art students and artisans, the most reliable information, based on the latest discoveries relating to the various industrial arts. Each monograph, complete in itself, contains a historical sketch, review of processes, description of characteristic examples of the newest productions, and all available data that will help to facilitate the identification of specimens. The illustrations are largely reproductions of examples in the Pennsylvania Museum collections. Present volume is devoted to the frit porcelain (pâte tendre), commonly known as French porcelain.

Brief survey of scientific and philosophical writers to show the trend of opinion towards a belief in immortality. Schopenhauer, Tyndall, and Metchnikoff are quoted to show that "science is the prophetess of immortality."

Bindloss, Harold. Winston of the prairie; with il. in color by W. Herbert Dunton. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1907.] c. 6+340 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

The prairie is the lonely land of northwestern Canada. Winston, after six years of hard labor, finds himself on the verge of starvation. He consents for $100 to personate a man of reckless character whom he resembles. After some time he does not wish to resume his own name, because the other man has stained it with murder, and is reported dead. Under the name of Courthorpe he comes into an inheritance. His life on his new property, the turning up of his alter ego, the great wheat problem of the West, are worked into a lively story.

Boulting, W: Tasso and his times; with 24 illustrations. N. Y., Putnam, 1907. 15+314 p. pors. O. cl., *$2.75 net.

It is only within the last few years that the real facts concerning the life of the author of the "Gerusalemme liberata" have been discovered. Born in 1544 of a well-known Italian family, Tasso's life was saddened from the first by separation from his parents. His schooldays passed he lived intensely, feverishly, playing his part in the brilliant life of Italian courts—Rome, Ferrara, Venice—of the sixteenth century, the friend of courtiers and men of letters, until, worn out and embittered, madness overtook him and his life was brought to a close in 1595. The man Tasso and his surroundings are here portrayed by the English author, who is known as the editor of Simondi's "Italian republics." List of authorities (2 p.). Index.

Bourke, S. Ten Eyck. Fables in feathers; told by S. Ten Eyck Bourke; il. by J. M. Condé. N. Y., Thomas Y. Crowell & Co., [1907.] c. 114 p. pls. sq. D. cl., $1.

In a fanciful setting are offered a group of legends dealing with bird life. Among other secrets of that long-ago time we learn "Why the swallow wears a forked tail," "Why the robin wears a red breast," "Why the woodpecker goes a-tapping," "Why the owl can't see in the sun," "Why the peacock wears eyes on his tail," "Why the crow's feathers are black," and other things just as interesting and until now unexplained.

Bronson, Walter Cochrane, comp. and ed. English poems; selected and ed., with illustrative and explanatory notes and bibliographies, by Walter C. Bronson. In 4 v. [v. 4.] The nineteenth century. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1907. c. 15+619 p. O. cl., *$1.50 net; Teachers' ed., *$1 net.

The editor is professor of English literature, Brown University. "This volume is the last in a projected series of four volumes of English poems, intended especially for use with college classes. The first volume will include Old English poems in translation, Middle English poems, a few specimens of the pre-Elizabethan drama, and old ballads. The second volume will cover the Elizabethan and Caroline periods. The third volume will cover the period of the Restoration and the eighteenth century. The present volume is devoted to the poetry of the nineteenth century. In the preparation of the present volume authors and poems have been chosen both for their merit and for their significance in the history of English literature. The book is, therefore, not an anthology or collection of the best poems. It is a collection of good poems that illustrate the different periods and phases of the work of individual poets, and the rise, growth, and decline of schools of poetry." Notes (88 p.). Bibliography (15 p.). Index of authors. Index of titles. Index to first lines.

Following an introduction by Rev. E. R. Lathrop and an appreciation by Rev. H. C. Jennings, are several autobiographical chapters giving briefly the events in the life of the author who, since 1888, has been an honored and faithful member of the Minnesota Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. For several years he has been a helpless invalid and also blind. He is now living at Ridgetown, Ontario. Two-thirds of the volume is, however, made up of papers on religious subjects, meditative and admonitory, and all betokening an alert, optimistic mind.

Conrad, Jos. The secret agent: a simple tale. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 373 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

Scene is laid in the London underworld where criminals make strange companions. Plot centres in the secret agent of the Russian Embassy, one Verloc, who is supposed to be an anarchist and hand and glove with foreign conspirators. Inaction however, has made him lethargic and dull, and, furthermore, he has married a wife and longs for a peaceful life. Events disclose the inner workings of anarchistic associations and the ever mindful police force, and culminate in a bomb outrage perpetrated on a miserable degenerate brother-in-law of Verloc. Tragedy and sordid failure end the story.

Crawford, Oswald J: F. The revelations of Inspector Morgan. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1907. c. 17+341 p. D. cl., *$1.50.

The four stories embraced under the title of "The revelations of Inspector Morgan" are the actual experiences of a member of England's world-famous detective force, which has its headquarters at Scotland Yard. They aim to establish the professional detective police of England "in that position of superiority to the mere amateur and outsider from which he has been ousted in contemporary fiction," so says the author, who is well known as a writer of novels. The tales included here are named: "Gentleman Coggins alias Towers," "The flying man," "The murder of Jex Fanu," and "The kidnapped children."

Dewe, J. A. Medieval and modern history: its formative causes and broad movements; with maps and illustrations. N. Y., Hinds, Noble & Eldredge, [1907.] c. 518 p. O. cl., $2.

Author is professor of history in the College of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minnesota. He says, in his preface: "He has not confined his narrative to the movements of armies or to the sequence of political events; it has been his purpose rather to impart a sound knowledge of the nature of institutions and of the economic, social, and religious causes of historical events. He has also attempted to give clear ideas of the broad movements of history and of the relations of such movements. Special attention has been given to the treatment of English history and a fuller consideration to the affairs of the church and its relations to the state than is to be found in most histories of the medieval period." Each chapter is followed by a topical summary and a list of books for general references. Index to church history, and General index.

Author is professor of political economy at Yale University. This article is reprinted from the Yale Medical Journal of March, 1907. It describes some experiments made upon Yale students and nurses and employes of the Battle Creek Sanitarium to determine the relations of certain dietetic factors to endurance, particularly the factors of proteid and flesh foods. The results of the comparisons which are given indicate that the users of low-proteid and non-flesh dietaries have far greater endurance than those who are accustomed to the ordinary American diet.

A young Englishman who, during convalescence from accident in the hunting field has become attached to the parson's daughter, is sent by his parents to Switzerland to give him other ideas. At Lucerne he meets "the lady," a passionate Slav nature, married to a brutal husband, ruler of one of the many little kingdoms of Austria. The author wishes to analyze a noble woman who has an uplifting effect on the Englishman and awakens soul and ideals in him. They live together for three weeks, then "the lady" goes home, and shortly after the birth of a son is murdered by her husband. She remains a power for good in the Englishman's life.

In response to an oft-repeated demand the President of Clark University has selected and epitomized the practical, and especially the pedagogical conclusions of his large work on "Adolescence," published in 1904, in such form as to be more available at less cost to parents, classes and teachers. This volume is the result, following in the main the original text with only minor changes and additions, and a new chapter on religious and moral education. Discusses pre-adolescence, the muscles and motor powers in general, industrial education, manual training, gymnastics, faults and crimes, education of girls, growth of social ideals, etc. Glossary. Harben, Will Nathaniel. Mam' Linda: a novel; il. by F. B. Masters. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 388 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A swift-moving tale of Georgia which treats the negro question from a standpoint altogether new—not that of the North, for the author is Southern born, with a full measure of loyal Southern feeling; and yet the standpoint is altogether different from the Southern one, which has been of recent years most exploited. The love interest centres about Carson Dwight, a young lawyer, and Helen Warren, to whom he is devotedly attached. By the author of "Ann Boyd," "Pole Baker," etc.

Relates in semi-story style the experiences of a group of girls who wished to speak grammatically and obtain ease in conversation. They arrange with an old teacher to write letters and essays to her which she returns corrected, with explanations of the corrections. They hold weekly meetings at each other's houses, when Miss Wilson's (the teacher's) missives are read and discussed. Quite a little fun, as well as information, will be found in the book.

Hinkson, Mrs. Katharine Tynan, [formerly Katharine Tynan.] For Maisie. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907. 8+312 p. front. D. cl., $1.25.

The principal figure in a quiet English story is a rough, uncultured man, who is not without elements of greatness in his character. Maisie is a little girl who, with her dying mother, seeks shelter in his poor cottage one stormy night. He adopts the child, and henceforth bestows upon her the most unselfish love and devotion, which she returns. He becomes wealthy, has her finely educated, and sends her abroad. She has a love story, and in order that she shall be happy he performs a noble act of self-sacrifice.

James Howell, who lived from about 1595 to 1666, was one of the greatest travellers of his day, a friend of Ben Jonson, an accomplished linguist, and an outspoken loyalist. For his devotion to Charles I. he spent some years in Fleet Prison, but was rewarded by Charles II. by being made Historiographer Royal of England, a position created for him and retained until his death. His letters are not only a storehouse of quaint anecdote, curious information, and racy phrase; they are likewise a repository of the intimate history of a most romantic age in England, and they present invaluable lights upon the social conditions of many countries of Europe during the middle 17th century.

Several of the characters of the author's "The singular Miss Smith" reappear in this story. The heroine is a delightful type of the clever, yet innocent and ingenuous American girl, and her artless revelations of herself, together with her ambitious attempts to achieve altruism and the higher levels of the new socialism, after the somewhat difficult manner of that serious personage, Professor William Rutherford Brown, whom she calls "Billy," are full of humor. Incidentally, the story throws occasional sidelights on many of the vexed questions of the day.

Anderson Crow was town marshal, fire chief and street commissioner in the little town of Tinkletown, supposed to be of Revolutionary renown. His "daughter" was left on his doorstep one bitter winter night and $1000 a year came regularly for her support. She received a good education "finishing" in New York City. She is abducted from Anderson's house and the story deals with the search for her undertaken by Anderson, who has now been put on the police force also. All clears up after many troublous adventures, and the "daughter's" parentage is explained.

McIntyre, J: T: The boy tars of 1812; il. by Clyde O. Deland. Phil., Penn Publishing Co., 1907. c. 319 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The time is at the opening of the war of 1812. A duplicate plan of the American coast defences is for the moment supposed to be lost and in danger of falling into the hands of the British. It is finally believed to be hidden in an old mansion on Long Island belonging to one of the young heroes. There are two American lads who make a search for it and find it. They participate in the conflict between the "Constitution" and the "Guerrière" and are with General Jackson at the battle of New Orleans. Vivid pictures of these two battles are presented.

Two previous volumes—"Winning his way to West Point" and "A plebe at West Point"—cover the past experiences of Douglas Atwell's life. He is the hero of this story, and is a cadet at West Point during a period when hazing had become a serious menace to the discipline of the Military Academy. As president of the yearling class, and a recognized leader among his comrades, he succeeds in breaking up hazing, in which process he has a personal encounter with the class bully and other disagreeable episodes. He figures in the army and navy football game, as well as in other phases of West Point life.

By the professor of literary theory and interpretation in the University of Chicago; author also of "The ancient classical drama" and "Shakespeare as a dramatic artist." The present work is supplementary to the latter book, and is a re-issue with rewritten Introduction of "The moral system of Shakespeare" published in 1903—a misunderstood title, the author has had reason to believe. The purpose of the present inquiry is to find out what is Shakespeare's philosophy of life and the universe. In bk. 1 particular dramas are presented, to illustrate the root ideas of Shakespeare's philosophy; bk. 2 surveys the world of his creation in its moral complexity, while bk. 3 considers the forces of life in Shakespeare's moral world. Appendix contains plot schemes of his dramas; index to plays and general index.

By the author of "The A B C of Wall Street," etc. Mr. Nelson adopts the dictionary form, but his book is rather a series of essays, with frequent citations of laws. Two compilations of all the state laws regarding state, county, and city indebtedness and savings bank investments may be cited as especially useful for the investor. All the various sorts of bonds are not only defined, but their investment quality is also described, and the effect of market fluctuations upon them specifically is distinguished.

Nolde, Elisabeth, Baroness de, ed. Madame de Staël and Benjamin Constant: unpublished letters; together with other mementos from the papers left by Mme. A great-granddaughter of Mme. Constant by her first marriage to Baron de Marenholtz unearthed from the Marenholtz archives some hitherto unpublished letters written by Mme. de Staël to Constant after their rupture. In them much of her passionate nature breaks forth, and in the midst of her keen interest in politics comes her constant cry that that most inconstant of Constants has ruined her life. Besides these letters, the editor, Baroness de Nolde, has added many details of the lives of both Mme. de Staël and Benjamin Constant, which she gathered from her grandmother, the wife of Mme. Constant's son, the Baroness de Marenholtz.

The celebrated landscape architect, designer of Central Park, New York, and of Jackson Park, Chicago, made leisurely journeys during the fifties through our Southern states, recording his observations in a series of volumes that have become authoritative information. The present work continues his investigations noted in "A journey in the seaboard slave states," but confines itself in the main to the hill-country people and those engaged in, or affected by, the production of cotton. Portrays the manners and customs of the Southerners before the war and lays special emphasis on the slavery question—a seething topic in 1860. Index.

Scene, mountains of Colorado; time, present day. A young mining engineer, having just completed a remunerative piece of work, takes a vacation. He hires himself as stage carpenter to a travelling theatrical company. The leading actress attracts his attention by her performance of a part relating to woman's duty in married life. Circumstances combine to make him the woman's protector. Mining camp fights and miners' reckless lives, a Mexican dancing girl, who proves a fearless heroine, and many startling adventures are worked into the plot. The young actress is a woman devoted to duty and ideals, whose principles on the subject of marriage keep her loyal to the villain of the story.

Most of this material appeared in Everybody's Magazine under the title of "Soldiers of the common good." It has, however, been entirely re-written and revised and a chapter on "Co-operative experiments in America" added. Beginning with the handful of wretched Rochdale weavers who in 1844 started the first experiment in co-operative store-keeping, the author describes the successive efforts of downtrodden mankind to solve the problems of poverty and oppression. Municipal ownership in England and continental countries; government control of railroads in Germany, Switzerland, etc.; Australia's experiments in government and New Zealand's amazing success in state ownership and state control, are in turn reviewed and deductions arrived at for our own social problems.

"The thesis herein advanced is based upon the assumption that animal organisms are conscious fabricative machines, which are constructed and operated through the power of environing forces. And it maintains that if the governing factors of animal organisms are based upon the principles of mechanics, as embodied in the governing elements of analogous inanimate machines, then a future state of conscious existence is reasonably assured and important questions of metaphysics may be satisfactorily answered. The doctrine that animal organisms are dependently related fabricative machines may be termed the doctrine of mechanicalism."—Introduction.

This is not a commentary nor an exposition of the Book of Daniel as a book, but merely a brief exposition of its prophetic part. Hence the reader will not find in it any discussion of controverted points connected with the date, authorship, authenticity and inspiration of the book. The author proceeds upon the accepted and well-nigh universal belief of evangelical Christendom upon these questions. In interpreting the prophecies he uses both prose and verse.

Mr. Wright has recently travelled through the islands in order to make a complete report to the Manufacturers' and Producers' Association of San Francisco, and this book is the outcome of his investigations while there. He enjoyed peculiar opportunities for seeing and studying life in the Philippines in their every practical aspect; but his inquiries were bent to the particular feature of collecting and analyzing information concerning commerce, productions, opportunities, etc., which should be of value to the manufacturer, exporter and traveller. Appendix contains text of the Treaty of Paris, statistical tables, reports of health conditions, money tables, etc. Each chapter is followed by a bibliography. Index.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

SEPTEMBER 21, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COLLATING FIFTEENTH CENTURY BOOKS.*

THE collation of a book is the enumeration of the number of leaves according to the way in which they are arranged in quires, and this collation should be given whether the quires are signed or not. If there are signatures, there can be no difficulty in counting the number of leaves which go to each quire; but when there are no signatures, as is the case with most books before 1475, the collation is a more difficult matter. The first thing to be looked at, if the book has no signatures written in by hand, is the sewing, which shows the centre of the quire and enables the counting of leaves from sewing to sewing.† This gives only the halves of two quires, and therefore recourse must be had to the watermarks. In a folio, if one leaf has a watermark the corresponding leaf which forms the other half of the sheet has none. In a quarto corresponding leaves have either no watermark, or each has half of one. With the sewing and watermarks as a basis, there is rarely any difficulty in making out the collation, the first and last quires being perhaps the only difficult ones to determine with accuracy; it is thus always best to settle the arrangement of the inside quires first and work from them to the outer

*Continuation of "The Profession of Bookselling." Full credit for authorities quoted will be given on the conclusion of the article.

†It was the pernicious custom of many binders in the earlier part of the last century when rebinding an old book to separate all the leaves and then fix them together in convenient sections, entirely ignoring the original "make-up."

sections, which are more likely to be mutilated. This method of collating by watermarks is very often useful for detecting made-up copies. Notice must always be taken of blank leaves which are part of the book.

Every defect in the text and binding should be frankly reported. Very often missing pages have been replaced by pages from another copy or damaged leaves have been cleverly pieced out with facsimiles or by hand, damaged illustrations retouched or modern bindings substituted for the original ones, etc. All these defects in or deviations from the original edition must be carefully noted and reported. If the work contains miniatures or initials or other decorative additions to the printed page the bookseller must be pardoned even if he unduly dwells upon these attractions. The binding, maps, plates, woodcuts, in fact anything or everything that has been added to the volume to make it more attractive should be specially mentioned and described as minutely as they deserve to be.

Previous ownership and the individual history of a book is of the utmost importance and should never be ignored. Notes of these appended to the titles, should epitomize the compiler's knowledge of the subject, "working out for the printed book," as Henry Bradshaw says, "the history of the volume from the present to the past; to peel off, as it were, every accretion, piece by piece, entry by entry, making each contribute its share of evidence of the book's history backwards from generation to generation; to take note of every entry which shows either use, or ownership or even the various changes of library arrangement, until we get back to the book itself as it left the original scriptorium or the hands of the scribe; noting how the book is made up; how the quires are numbered for the binder; how the corrector has done his work, leaving his certificate on the quire leaf or page, or not, as the case may be; how the rubricator has performed his part; what kind of handwriting the scribe uses; and finally, to what country or district all these pieces of evidence point. . . . The quiet building up of facts, the habit of patiently watching a book, and listening while it tells its own story, must tend to produce a solid groundwork of knowledge which alone leads to that sober confidence before which both negative assumption and ungrounded speculation, however brilliant, must ultimately fail."

As a fair example of treating the title of a fifteenth century book for a bookseller's cat-atalogue, we take the following from "Catalogue No. 25 of Old and Rare Books," published by Wilfrid M. Voynich, of London:

Estwood of Ashendon (John) fl. 1350. [Eschnld (Johannes)] Summa astrologiæ judicialis de accidentibus mundi quæ ANGLICANA nuncupatur. Large 4to, Rom. type, with signs and numeration, but without catchwords, 2 ll., 218 ll. (sign. n in 9, n^o being blank, was cancelled by the printer), 1 leaf with register, 2 cols., 57-58 lines to a full col., large woodcut MAP of the WORLD on sign. f4, full-page diagram of the world on sign. f5, woodcut diagrams and fine large flor. inits., some old marginal MS. notes, first leaf and some margins stained, otherwise fine large copy, vellum, £8 8s. 10. Lucidius Santritter, for Franc. Bolanus, Venice, 7 July, 1489

EXTREMELY RARE, and the only edition of a very interesting work on meteorology and astrology. The map of the world is described by Nordenskiöld on p. 85. Hain, *6685. Copinger, *6685. Panzer, III, 277, 1228. Proctor, *5184. The only book printed by Santritter alone. Burger's Index, 576.

Regarding the arrangement of the titles of incunabula in a bookseller's catalogue little may be said. If they are run in with other titles they may be distinguished in various ways, according to the fancy of the cataloguer. Usually they are prominently displayed in heavy type under a caption calling special attention to their age, press, or other distinguishing characteristic. In a special catalogue of incunabula the titles are usually arranged in chronological order under the names of the cities where they were printed, the latter arranged alphabetically, as Augsburg, Basle, Cremona, Leipzig, Milan, etc. In exceptional cases fifteenth century books are catalogued exclusively in chronological order, that is, according to date of publication. Under no circumstances must they be arranged in alphabetical order by author or title.

Everybody's Magazine for September contains an article on "The Department Store at Close Range" which, like all discussions of such subjects from the outside, often contribute to the gayety of those who really know the subject from the inside. After talking entertainingly of the things few people really care to know very much about, the writer of the article commits the error of illustrating one of his statements by an example. He is writing of the efforts of the buyer to keep stocks low in order that the capital invested in his department may be kept working—books, for example. "For illustration," says this reporter of department store methods, "take the business in books. If the buyer is reasonably sure that he can sell 200 copies of a certain novel, he doesn't buy that number at once. The publisher usually gets seventy-five cents for a book that is listed at $1.50, retail. The department store buyer orders ten books, for which he pays $7.50. He sells these books at $1.08 each—the selling price is as carefully standardized as everything else in a department store. . . . When the first ten books are sold, the buyer orders ten more, paying for them out of the sales of the first ten, and so on until the demand for the novel is exhausted. If he sells the whole 200, he has done a business of $216 on a capital of $7.50, and he has the profits made on each ten to apply to buying other books if he wishes." The writer of this should have borne in mind the advice given to an eminent judge by his father-in-law, also an eminent jurist: "My son, never explain your decisions; because, while your decisions, in the main, may be right, your explanations are apt to be wrong."

NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS PROTEST AGAINST PRICE OF PAPER.

AFTER a long discussion and debate covering all phases of the "white paper situation," the members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association passed a resolution at a special meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City, on the 18th inst., to take steps to obtain relief from the high rates charged for paper.

The white paper situation was described by one of the members as the most important topic in present day newspaper economics and a vital one in the future of the newspapers of the country. Recently the prices were advanced by the independent manufacturers of paper, and quotations are said to range from $2.50 to $2.75. Some of the great paper concerns are not quoting prices at all, it is stated. Production has practically stopped, it is said.

The more important points contained in the preamble of the resolution are as follows:

In view of the information submitted to the American Newspaper Publishers' Association by its committee on paper, indicating that unlawful combinations of paper makers have been organized recently, that artificial stimulation of prices has been accomplished, and that judicial prohibition of such efforts has been disobeyed, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association hereby instructs its committee on paper to invite the attention of the President and the Department of Justice to these movements, which we regard as conspiracies in restraint of trade, and we give these instructions to the committee, in order:

First—That the authority of the existing statutes for repression of trade combinations may be invoked.

Second—That the defiance of recent judicial action prohibiting participation in such combinations by certain Western mills may be punished.

And that the President of the United States may be put in possession of information which shall equip him to advise Congress of the abuse of tariff powers by paper makers.

This resolution followed:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the duty on printing paper, wood pulp and all material entering into the manufacture of printing paper be immediately repealed.

ENGLISH FICTION IN DEMAND IN AUGUST.

ACCORDING to the London Bookman the following fiction was most in demand in England during August:

Love, the Judge, by Wymond Carey. Methuen.

A deftly-written story into which Oxford, three women and an American financier all come.

The Helpmate, by May Sinclair. Constable.

The Privateers, by H. B. Marriott. Methuen.

A nimble, captivating romance in which an English girl plays heroine to a couple of enterprising visitors, the scene being laid in England and Brittany.

A Mother's Son, by Mrs. and Mr. C. B. Fry. Methuen.

A story of a boy who grows up an ideal Englishman in the sense of being a fine fellow and a fine sportsman.

Only Betty, by "Curtis Yorke." John Long.

A pleasant story, the scene of which is laid in a Welsh country-house.

Whoever Loveth, by William Le Queux. Hutchinson.

A sensational tale for the large public who like "thrills."

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

COPYRIGHT LAW IN FRANCE.

PRESIDENT FALLIERES, according to an Associated Press despatch, has signed a decree appointing an extra parliamentary commission to inquire into the conditions relating to copyright in literary matter.

The first copyright law of France, which also included composers of music, painters and designers, dates from July 19, 1793. Since then there have been various modifications introduced, down to 1866, when the present law came into force, fixing at fifty years from the death of the author the copyright in his works, which his heirs or successors may claim.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM CROSBY.

WILLIAM CROSBY, who, as the senior member of the firm of William Crosby & H. P. Nichols, of Boston, sixty years ago ranked among the leading publishers and booksellers of this country, died on the 9th inst. at his residence, 60 Cedar Street, Roxbury District, Boston. Mr. Crosby was born in Charlestown, N. H., in 1819, and went to Boston at the age of thirteen to take a position in the bookstore of Leonard C. Bowles. He remained with Mr. Bowles, whose daughter he married, until 1844, when with his friend, Henry P. Nichols, of Salem, (where his father, George Nichols, was for many years a well-known auctioneer,) he formed the firm of William Crosby & H. P. Nichols, settling at 111 Washington Street. In 1862 Joseph Ainsworth was admitted as a partner, and the firm became Crosby, Nichols & Co. Shortly after that they purchased the book stock and good will of John P. Jewett & Co., and removed their business to the Jewett store at 117 Washington Street, where they remained until the firm went out of existence. In 1860, William Lee, of the old firm of Phillips, Sampson & Co., who in that year returned from Europe to help wind up the affairs of the concern with which he had been connected for years as clerk and partner, joined the firm of Crosby, Nichols & Co., which then became Crosby, Nichols, Lee & Co. Two years later the firm met with financial difficulties, and then broke up into three separate concerns—Crosby & Nichols keeping together under the old firm name for about four years, when they separated, and Crosby & Ainsworth took over and continued the wholesale business, H. P. Nichols and Henry D. Noyes, under the firm name of Nichols & Noyes, continuing the retail business. Both firms retained the old quarters at 117 Washington Street, Nichols & Noyes occupying the front of the store and Crosby & Ainsworth the rear. Mr. Lee, it will be remembered, went into business, in 1862, with his friend, Charles A. B. Shepard, under the firm name of Lee & Shepard, and located on Washington Street, directly opposite the Old South Church. About 1885 Mr. Crosby sold out his share of the business to A. S. Barnes and W. H. Woolworth, of New York City, and retired from the book business. A new firm, Woolworth, Ainsworth & Co., took over the publishing business of Crosby & Ainsworth and transferred it to New York City. The firm of Nichols & Noyes* was succeeded by Noyes, Holmes & Co., who removed to 221 and 381 Washington Street and afterward to Bromfield Street, where, in 1875, they were succeeded by Lockwood, Brooks & Co., who in turn were succeeded by Cleaves, Macdonald & Co. and William Macdonald & Co. Mr. Nichols in 1890, then in his seventy-fourth year, was run down and killed by a herdic.

After the firm of Crosby & Ainsworth was dissolved, Mr. Crosby became a partner in the wholesale clothing firm of Merrill Bros. The firm failed shortly after, and Mr. Crosby lost his whole fortune. He was then appointed to the office of Superintendent of the Children's Mission, a benevolent institution conducted by the Unitarians for the reformation and care of the homeless children of Boston. He filled this office until two years ago, when failing health obliged him to retire.

Mr. Crosby's firm before it went into bankruptcy had accumulated a fine list of books in every department of literature, and had it been farsighted enough might easily have controlled the books of a number of the rising New England writers who afterward

*There was another bookselling firm with which Samuel F. Nichols was connected, that of Nichols & Hall, who had no connection or relationship with H. P. Nichols. The Nichols & Hall firm were successors of Chase & Nichols and Samuel F. Nichols at 41 Washington Street. When Mr. Hall joined Mr. Nichols and the firm became Nichols & Hall they removed to 32 Bromfield Street, where they did a large jobbing business and manufactured blank books. In 1880 Mr. Nichols dropped out of the firm, his place being taken by Charles H. Whiting, the firm name becoming Hall & Whiting. In 1883 Mr. Whiting took over the entire business and carried it on under his own name at 168 Devonshire Street until about 1890, when he sold out the greater part of his miscellaneous books to T. Y. Crowell & Co. and his school books to the American Book Company and Hinds & Noble.

found encouragement at the Old Corner Bookstore. As it was, when Longfellow offered Crosby & Nichols the manuscript of his "Voices of the Night," with the stipulation that the firm give him a position, it was summarily rejected. The firm always did a profitable business, and their imprint may be found on the title-pages of books of a high standard and value. The most valuable asset of their business was the famous Payson, Dutton and Scribner series of penmanship, which alone brought a fortune to the firm and all connected with their publication. Their imprint also appeared on the North American Review and other magazines and journals famous in their day.

FREDERICK GEORGE McNALLY, son of the late Andrew McNally, one of the founders of the firm of Rand, McNally & Co., and for three years the president of that publishing house, died on September 16 at his home on Park Avenue, Chicago. Physical breakdown, due to overwork, was the indirect cause of the illness which resulted in his death. Mr. McNally was born in Chicago December 20, 1865, and was educated at the Highland Military Academy, from which he was graduated with the class of '84. In the same year he entered the employ of his father's publishing business, beginning as a bill clerk, and advancing step by step through the various departments. In 1898 he was elected vice-president and auditor, and in 1904 he succeeded his father as president. He was also a director of the Chicago National Bank, of the Home Savings Bank and of the Equitable Trust Company; president and a director of the Prairie Farmer Publishing Company, the Farm Life Company, the Vindermere Ranch Company and the Neff Laboratory Company. He was a member of a number of clubs and was a thirty-second degree Mason.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

ONTARIO BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE Booksellers' and Stationers' Association of Ontario held its first annual meeting in Toronto on August 29. While the attendance was not large numerically nearly every prominent house was represented. President Tyrrell welcomed the gathering and impressed upon it the importance of supporting the organization and enlarging its membership. After the reading of the reports of the executive committee and secretary-treasurer, the association formally adopted the constitution and by-laws as presented. At the end of the session the following officers were elected: President, William Tyrrell, Toronto; vice-president, J. G. Cloke, Hamilton; committee: G. W. Sulman, Chatham; R. A. Robertson, Hamilton; E. S. Brown, Collingwood; A. H. Stratton, Peterboro, and W. B. Hart, Perth.

The social features included a tally-ho drive about the city and suburbs and a banquet at the St. Charles Hotel that was attended by a large number of members of the trade and others.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE, the novelist, and Miss Joan Leckie, were quietly married on September 18 at St. Margaret's, Westminster. Most of England's literary celebrities were present at a reception at the Hotel Metropole after the ceremony.

JOHN TOWNSEND TROWBRIDGE, the only living member of New England's famous group of authors and poets, which included Longfellow, Whittier, Emerson, Holmes and Lowell, observed on the 18th inst. the eightieth anniversary of his birth. The aged author passed the day quietly at his home in Arlington, Mass., the only formal observance being a reception of his friends.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE State Geological and Natural History Survey of Connecticut has brought out a "Bibliography of the Geology of Connecticut," by Professor Herbert Ernest Gregory, of Yale University. The list of titles is believed by the compiler to be practically complete to January, 1906, and a few papers of more recent date have been added. Articles in the local newspapers and descriptions in textbooks have not been included. In preparing the notes an effort has been made wherever practicable to give the author's main conclusions, instead of describing the table of contents, but this is not attempted with the larger and more general works. With the exception of a few instances, no attempt has been made to estimate the value of the various papers, and some have been included only because of their historic interest. A list of geological maps, including those used as illustrations accompanying reports, follows the list of papers. The articles catalogued number 591. The bibliography forms Bulletin No. 8 of the series and is supplied by George S. Godard, State Librarian, Hartford, Conn. (124 p. 8°, pap., 20 c.)

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.

Americus Book Company, Americus, Ga., Americana, chiefly Florida items. (4 p. 12°.)

Francis Edwards, 83 High Street, Marylebone, London, W., Topographical and antiquarian library of the late E. S. Wilson, of Brough, Yorkshire. (No. 292, 690 titles.)

George Engelke, 280 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill., Americana, natural science, etc. (No. 4, 1080 titles.)

Gregory's Book Store, 116 Union St., Providence, R. I., Miscellaneous, including recent importations of English books, both new and second-hand. (No. 43, 570 titles.)

Charles E. Lauriat Co., 385 Washington St., Boston, Lauriat's Boston Book Notes, v. 3, No. 4, Miscellaneous. (111 titles.)

Joseph McDonough Co., 39 Columbia St., Albany, N. Y., Miscellaneous, including a number of private press publications. (No. 232, 639 titles.)

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Tropical and Sub-Tropical America is the title of a new monthly magazine devoted to the varied interests of South America, Mexico, Central America and the West Indies, to be published by the Tropical America Publishing Company, of 18 Frankfort Street, New York. The magazine will be under the immediate editorship of G. M. L. Brown, who will have as associate W. S. Dunbar, both of whom are well known as contributors to the leading magazines on Latin-American subjects.

It is rumored, according to the London Academy, that at least two English monthly magazines will shortly cease publication. "No one who has watched the English magazines with any sustained interest during the past year or so," continues the Academy, "can be reasonably surprised at the news. There are far too many on the market, whilst the increased enterprise shown by various publishing houses in offering the public cheap novels at sixpence or sevenpence has added to the general competition. Moreover, it is useless to deny that the majority of our monthly magazines are degenerate productions. Stupidly written and coarsely illustrated, they are very frequently even badly printed. Judged as a whole they are poorer in every respect than the productions of a dozen or fifteen years ago. A uniform tendency to cheapen our magazines, to appeal to the most illiterate and indiscriminating public, becomes more apparent with each successive month. There are, of course, still a few honorable exceptions, such as Blackwood's and the Cornhill, but it is to be noticed with regret that several of the more reputable magazines of this description have entirely dropped out of the struggle for popular favor. Longman's, always quiet and pleasantly written, has been dead a year, whilst Macmillan's is now nothing but an advertising "booklet" for its publishers. The Pall Mall and the English Illustrated appear to have completely obliterated the last traces of their former characteristics. Still, it may gratify many people to know that the Strand has just successfully completed its seventeenth year."

BUSINESS NOTES.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—At the meeting of the creditors of the H. H. Otis Book Company it was decided to sell out the stock and fixtures of the bankrupt concern on September 23 at 650 Main Street.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Lakeside Library Company has applied for license to incorporate a publishing business. This, together with The Medical Publishing Company, will be conducted at 269 Dearborn Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The incorporation of the Boost Club, of New York, under the laws of the State of New York, is announced. The capital stock is placed at $5000. The directors are F. P. Seymour, William E. Smith and Samuel Graydon, all of New York.

NEW YORK CITY.—Greenhut & Co. have opened their new dry goods store at Sixth Avenue, Eighteenth to Nineteenth Streets, the store formerly occupied by B. Altman & Co. They will instal a book and stationery department.

NEW YORK CITY.—Schedules in the bankruptcy of the Hints Publishing and Supply Company, of 99 Fourth Avenue, show liabilities of $20,351 and nominal assets of $87,614, consisting of stock, $17,964; fixtures, $1850; accounts $550, and copyrights, goodwill, trade names, book plates, etc., $67,250. The entire assets were sold by the receiver last week for about $5000. They were appraised by appraisers at $3497, without the accounts.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The American Book Company has removed from its temporary quarters on Grove Street to 565 Market Street—the building put up by Cunningham, Curtiss & Welch.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—D. Schiller, 227 Pennsylvania Avenue, has bought the entire stock of James F. Meegan, comprising new and rare second-hand books.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. have just brought out "The Old Faith Restated," by the Rev. James Hyde, a minister of the New Church in England, who presents the attitude of the Swedenborgian church toward the new theology.

THE NEALE PUBLISHING COMPANY has in press a work dealing with "The Political Opinions of Thomas Jefferson," by Professor John W. Wayland, Ph.D., of the University of Virginia, containing an introduction by Professor Richard Heath Dabney, Ph.D., of the same institution.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation a book for young people, entitled "The Closed Balcony," by Miss Anne Gardner Hale, a story with a mystery in a New England farmhouse. A mischievous boy and a blundering girl and a boys' circus give the book an agreeable flavor of fun.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish in November a "Life of Phillips Brooks," by Dr. A. V. G. Allen, Professor of Church History at Harvard University. The work will be largely an abridgment of the three-volume edition of the "Life of Phillips Brooks" already published by the Duttons, although considerable new material will be added.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly "The Youngsters of Centerville," by Mrs. Etta Anthony Baker, who has based this (her first) book upon events occurring on a dozen school and national holidays. It is said to be a spirited tale with equally spirited illustrations by Francis Day. It also manages to slyly inculcate lessons in patriotism and history.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. have in preparation a work on "The Art of William Blake," by Elisabeth Luther Cary, containing many illustrations from Blake's "Manuscript Sketch Book" which have never before been published; also, "The Pianolist," by Gustav Kobbé, a music-study for the uninstructed music lover, is another book scheduled for October.

HARPER & BROTHERS publish this week "Ancestors," a story of California life, by Gertrude Atherton; "From Van Dweller to Commuter," by Albert Bigelow Paine; "Wee Winkles and Her Friends," by Gabrielle E. Jackson; "The Indian's Book," by Natalie Curtis; and "The Exploits of Arsène Lupin," by Maurice Leblanc, all fully described in our issue for September 7.

HODGSON & Co., the English auction firm, recently celebrated its centennial, having been founded by Robert Saunders in September, 1807. The firm gave its staff an outing to Stratford-on-Avon, at which Henry Hill Hodgson, for fifty years the head of the firm, presided, seconded by his partners, J. E. and S. Hodgson. H. H. Hodgson is the present Master of the Stationers Company.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in October the Rotch edition of Emanuel Swedenborg's theological works in thirty-two volumes, the first complete edition of Swedenborg's theological writings and the first trade edition of his works published in this country; also, General Morris Schaff's interesting reminiscences of "The Spirit of West Point," which attracted considerable attention while running serially through the Atlantic, with additions, revisions and illustrations.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish September 25 a new edition of Boutet de Monvel's beautifully made and illustrated "Joan of Arc;" six volumes of the Geographical Stories, retold from St. Nicholas; another of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's "Queen Silver-bell" fairy stories, "The Cozy Lion;" "Abbie Ann," by George Madden Martin, author of "Emmy Lou" stories; Alice Hegan Rice's first juvenile, "Captain June," and a story of an Oregon lumber camp by Beatrice Mantle, "Gret: the Story of a Pagan."

BLOCH PUBLISHING COMPANY, New York City, have just ready "Sufferings of the Jews in the Middle Ages," by Leopold Zunz, which is most timely to-day, though written almost half a century ago by a master of the science of Judaism; "The Trial of Jesus from Jewish Sources," by Rabbi Aaron P. Drucker; "Talks to Jewish Children," two volumes of sermons by the late Dr. Hermann Baar, originally delivered at the New York Hebrew Orphan Asylum; and "The Children's Psalm Book," by Mrs. Nathaniel L. Cohen, a selection of psalms with explanatory comments, together with a prayer-book for home use in Jewish families.

BROWN BROTHERS, LTD., of Toronto, are celebrating their fiftieth anniversary as a firm of printers, publishers, booksellers and stationers. Thomas Brown, the son of Thomas Brown, of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, came to this country in 1846 with his family, making for the Queen City, where he bought out the book and stationery business of Mr. Payne, on King Street. After ten years of hard work he was succeeded by three of his sons, of whom Richard alone survives. Richard Brown entered the employ of Thomas Maclear on Yonge Street, in 1848, and in 1856 joined his brothers, and from that time to this his interest in the business has remained unbroken.

PAUL ELDER & Co. announce a quarto edition of Poe's "Raven," with Poe's essay on "The Philosophy of Composition," as an introduction, with illustrations by Galen J. Perrett reproduced in photogravure, and decorations by Will Jenkins; two new books by Jennie Day Haines—"Christmas Tyde," giving the joyous customs and traditions of the holidays from Christmas Eve onward to Twelfth Night topically arranged, and "Weather Opinions," a quaint compilation of weather quotations with original interleaves upon various weather subjects, decorated semi-humorously by Spencer Wright; also, "The Cynic's Calendar" for 1908, with which is to be incorporated a lexicon of legal phrases designed to enlighten the uninitiated.

THE ARTHUR H. CLARK COMPANY, of Cleveland, O., announce an important addition to their list of publications relating to American history. This new work is a biography of Dr. John McLoughlin, by Frederick V. Holman, of Portland, Oregon. Dr. McLoughlin, better known as the "Father of Oregon," was the pioneer of pioneers in the great Northwest, and for over a quarter of a century was absolute dictator over that vast region known as the Oregon Country. A born leader of men, and a constructive statesman, he laid the foundations of the State of Oregon. The biography is interesting both from the standpoint of the student and that of the ordinary reader. Portraits and illustrative documents complete the account.

ROBERT CLARKE COMPANY announce the reprinting of volumes of the famous Ohio Historical Series, the plates of which were destroyed in the great Cincinnati fire of February 26, 1903. The demand for this famous series devoted to the pioneers in our vast Western country has induced the publishers to reprint the following volumes: Bouquet's "Expedition Against the Ohio Indians, 1764;" Clark's "Sketches of His Campaign in the Illinois in 1778-9;" Drake's "Pioneer Life in Kentucky;" Howells's "Recollections of Life in Ohio from 1813-1840;" Shepherd, "Antiquities of the State of Ohio;" Smith, James, "Captivity with the Indians, 1755-59;" and Withers's "Chronicles of Border Warfare." Additional volumes of the series are also under consideration for reissue.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in preparation a novel by Richard S. Holmes, editor of The Westminster, entitled "The Maid of Honor." The story deals with both business and religion and draws the character of a shrewd Scotch-American that cannot easily be forgotten. They also announce a collection of sermons and addresses by Maltbie Davenport Babcock, entitled "Fragments that Remain," which may be a satisfactory if not absolutely perfect response to the desire of those who were lifted out of themselves by the personality and address of this gifted man that they could never again go over his words; and a volume of sermons and meditations connected with the communion service, by Hugh Black, the gifted Scottish preacher, entitled "Christ's Service of Love."

SINCE the issue of the "Educational List for 1907" the following changes in prices and transfers of publications have been called to our attention: Charles Scribner's Sons have changed the price of Mrs. Parmele's short histories of Rome and Italy, Russia, Spain, United States, England, France and Germany from 60 cents per volume to $1 each. In addition to the volumes of the Latin Series formerly published by the University Publishing Company, that have been bought by D. C. Heath & Co., and credited to them in our "Educational List," the following should be added as having also passed into their hands: Key to "Barss' Writing Latin," Anderson's "Selections from Ovid," Carter's "Roman Elegiac Poets," and Gildersleeve's "New Latin Primer," "Latin Reader" and "Latin Exercise Book," (old edition.)

HILLS & HAFELY COMPANY, New York City, have just brought out four attractive calendars for 1908, in booklet form—"The Book Lovers' Calendar," compiled by Alfred H. Miles, with appropriate quotations in prose and verse on the subject of books and reading, for each month; "The Music Lovers' Calendar," with notes of the birth and death of noted composers, quotations for each month, each page being headed by a bar of the best-known work of a world master of music; "The Garden Lovers' Calendar," with extracts from Essay XLVI of Gardens by Francis Bacon; also, "Stepping Stones," in which the days of the month mark by quotations the growth of man from dawn to eternity. The calendars are handsomely printed and bound, and contain information as to rates of postage and church and legal holidays.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready three books for young people—"Day, Her Year in New York," the third book in the popular "Sidney" series for girls, by Anna Chapin Ray; "The Diamond King and the Little Man in Gray," by Lily F. Wesselhoeft, in which she sets her little heroine among the elves, gnomes and giants of a fairy kingdom; also, "Judy," by Miss Temple Bailey, who has written much for St. Nicholas, and has taken a prize for fiction written for a magazine competition. They have also just ready the Pocket edition of the "Masterpieces of Alexandre Dumas," in fourteen volumes, and pocket editions of two of Mary W. Tileston's books for daily reading, "Daily Strength for Daily Needs" and "Prayers, Ancient and Modern;" and a new popular edition of Philip Gilbert Hamerton's "Intellectual Life." They will publish on the 28th inst. three books for the young—"Boys of the Border," the third volume in the Old Deerfield Series, by Mary P. Wells Smith; "Dorchester Days," by A. G. Plympton, and "The Next Door Morelands," by Emily Westwood Lewis; together with a pocket edition of Jane Austen's novels, in six volumes.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly "The Crested Seas," by James B. Connolly, author of "Out of Gloucester," etc., a collection of stories of the adventures of the men who sail from Gloucester; also, "Stevenson's Letters," in two volumes, similar in size, form and make-up to the successful biographical edition of his works, of which they will hereafter form a part. They have in preparation a new edition of Stevenson's "Travels with a Donkey," and one of his "An Inland Voyage," in the same size, make-up and binding as the Pocket R. L. S. which appeared last year, bound in limp leather and most attractive in type and general arrangement; "The France of To-Day," by Professor Barrett Wendell, of Harvard, the result of observation and travel in France, especially during the year when the author was lecturer at the Sorbonne, giving a very vivid picture of intimate French life to-day; "Inquiries and Opinions," a series of twelve essays on literary and critical subjects, by Professor Brander Matthews, of Columbia; also, "The Virgin Birth of Christ," lectures by Professor James Orr, well known for his many books on biblical subjects, and especially for his work on "The Problem of the Old Testament," which was awarded the Bross Prize of $6000 two years ago at Lake Forest University.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just brought out a work entitled "Youth," by G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University and Professor of Psychology and Pedagogy. The work is a condensation of the two-volume treatise by the same author on "Adolescence, its Psychology and its Relation to Physiology, Anthropology, Sociology, Sex, Crime, Religion, and Education." The present book deals with the vital problems of education and is of interest to parents, teachers, and every man or woman who was ever young. They have also just ready the following books for young people: "Four Afloat," the cruise of four boys in New England waters, and "The Spirit of the School," a story giving contrasts of school characters, both by Ralph Henry Barbour; "Buck Jones at Annapolis," a story of naval life which is said to be largely autobiographical, by Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson; "The Young Trailers," a story of the first settlers in Kentucky, by Joseph Altsheler; "Beaver Creek Farm," the story of a city-bred boy on his grandfather's farm, by Edward W. Townsend; "The King's Scouts," a story of early Indian days, by William R. A. Wilson; "The Bountyville Boys," the story of a free military school, by H. Irving Hancock; "The Joy of Piney Hill," a story of ideal school life, by Gabrielle E. Jackson; "Little Miss Cricket's New Home," by the same author; "At the Mikado's Court," a story of three American boys' adventures in Japan, by Henry Harrison Lewis; "Peggy, Betsy, and Mary Ann," a story of three little Illinois girls who spend a winter in Alabama, by Bell Elliott Palmer.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will issue on the 25th inst. a new book by G. B. Lancaster, author of "The Sons o' Men," etc., entitled "The Tracks We Tread," a story of New Zealand full of the episodes, pathetic and humorous, which occur in the land of sheep and strong men, for which G. M. Kaiser has made some characteristic illustrations; "Memoirs of an Arabian Princess," by Princess Salamah bint Said, a daughter of the Sultan of Muscat and Zanzibar, (translated by Lionel Strachey,) in which the reader is treated to a rather unusual glimpse into the private life of an Arabian home, illustrated with reproductions from photographs; "The Overman," Upton Sinclair's new novel; "Hymns Every Child Should Know," for children of all ages, useful for school room and supplementary reading; "The Near East," by a personal friend of the King of Italy, the German Emperor, the Sultan and other European sovereigns, who in this volume is said to give the first authentic statement concerning the lawless regions of the Balkan states; "Fiji and its Possibilities," by Beatrice Grimshaw, who enjoys the reputation of being the only woman who has penetrated the interior of the Cannibal Islands, whose book is valuable as an interesting geographical document of conditions among savage tribes and as an account of the history, government, trades and customs of the more civilized parts; "Mosses and Lichens," by Nina L. Marshall, full of interesting facts with illustrations in color and in black and white; also, "Wild Flowers of the British Isles," by H. Isabel Adams, intended as a guide for botanists, students and teachers, with 75 full-page plates in color.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publishes this week three new series of books, each of which has some special claim to attention. First in importance is a new issue of The Globe Poets, in fresh typographical dress and binding. It may be that some readers will regret the familiar green binding of the famous Globe Shakespeare, Wordsworth and Spenser; but for those who are without such amiable prejudices, the gain in attractiveness and convenience will be undeniable. The second series is called The New Travel Series, and consists of new and uniform editions of certain favorite illustrated books of travel, such as Dr. Hale's "Tarry at Home Travels," Alice Morse Earle's "Stage Coach and Tavern Days," and Clifton Johnson's "The Isle of the Shamrock." The third series has the significant title Every Boy's and Every Girl's Series. It consists of low-priced and attractive reprints of a number of favorite books for children, such as "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland," "Tom Brown's School Days," Mabel Osgood Wright's "Dogtown," Charles Major's "The Bears of Blue River," Ernest Ingersoll's "Eight Secrets," and Beulah Marie Dix's "Merrylips." They have in preparation an interesting volume of reminiscences in Walter Crane's "An Artist's Reminiscences," which may be expected before the end of this month. Mr. Crane has had an exceptionally large and interesting circle of friends as a result of the various activities in which he has been concerned. As one of the foremost artists of his time, he was naturally in touch with almost every distinguished English painter of the last generation, and particularly with the pre-Raphaelite group, with which he had strong sympathies. He has achieved no mean reputation as a poet as well, and has known intimately the important figures in the literary world. And added to this, he has enjoyed the friendship of a most interesting group of men, because of his affiliations with the socialist movement, into which he was drawn by William Morris. In the department of books for young people they announce James Morgan's "Theodore Roosevelt—the Boy and the Man;" also, a series of six books to be entitled Peeps at Many Lands, the volumes, dealing with "Italy," "France," "Holland," "Scotland," "India" and "Japan," being well printed and illustrated with colored pictures and bound with a decorated cover.

AUCTION SALES.

SEPTEMBER 23, 24, 2:30 P.M.—Books mainly from two private libraries, comprising Americana, Indians, sporting, etc., illustrated works, etc., and a few autographs. (605 lots.)—Anderson.

SEPTEMBER 25, 26, 2:30 P.M.—The libraries of the late Charles H. Shelley, of Babylon, L. I., and of the Rev. H. L. Myrick, New York City, with additions. (658 lots.)—Anderson.

SEPTEMBER 27, 2:30 and 8 P.M.—The Shakespearean collection of Mrs. Mary R. Silsby, Seneca Falls, N. Y., with others of equal interest. (618 lots.)—Anderson.

OCTOBER 1, 2, 10 A.M. and 2 P.M.—An English consignment of books, including rare Americana, early printed books, bibliography, architectural and fine art publications, etc., and magazines. (1248 lots.)—Libbie.

OCTOBER 3, 4, 2:30 P.M.—Library of the late Rev. W. Kirkus, including a fine collection of standard authors. (617 lots.)—Anderson.

THE ANDERSON AUCTION COMPANY, beginning with this season, has adopted the English system of selling books, that is by the lot and not by the volume. The hours for beginning sales will hereafter be at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock in the evening. The Anderson Company will sell later in the season the well-known collection of the late J. Chester Chamberlain, of New York City, whose collection of American first editions is one of the most complete and important ever offered at public or private sale. The collection comprises more than 1800 titles of books, including presentation copies and association books of the highest interest. A few of the almost unique items are an immaculate copy of "Moll Pitcher," 1832, (Whittier,) in the original blue wrappers, uncut; Hawthorne's "Fanshawe," "Time's Portraiture" and his rare "Biography of Samuel Johnson," that appeared in the Sunday School Society's Gift for 1842; Longfellow's "Outre-Mer," in original wrappers, entirely uncut; Lowell's "Mason & Slidell" and the Commemoration Ode; seven presentation copies from Walt Whitman, and many others of equal interest.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

1st In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

2d Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

To the Salesman Who Knows a Book from a Best-seller

Our head salesman says that "The Good Comrade," by Una L. Silberrad, ought to sell 50,000 copies.

Yet this is ten times as much as any former novel by this author, and we've noticed that the man who is responsible for a book's circulation is apt to become conservative.

We are confident that if only half the discriminating booksellers would read this delightful novel their enthusiasm would soon spread to 50,000 customers.

It's a book you may be as proud to sell as we are to publish.

The Good Comrade

Showing that real people can be even more interesting than the sawdust dolls of a certain school of "romance." $1.50.

Mosses and Lichens

By NINA L. MARSHALL, author of "The Mushroom Book." For the first time a book is available which will encourage the desire of the nature lover for some knowledge of beautiful growths which everywhere greet him on his walks. It appeals to all, both young and old. For the student there are brief and clear descriptions, supplemented with numerous plates and pen sketches; and for the layman there are so many interesting facts that he will be tempted to make further investigation. Thirty-two pages of half-tones, sixteen color-plates and 1445 line drawings. Net, $4.00; postage 43 cents.

Wild Flowers of the British Isles

By H. ISABEL ADAMS. The seventy-five color plates illustrate two hundred and forty-three British wild flowers, accurately drawn and painted from life, and constitute a real triumph for modern color printing. While complete in a scientific way, the text is presented very simply and very charmingly; all superfluous botanical words have been eliminated. Boxed. Net, $10.00; postage 38 cents.

The Overman

By UPTON SINCLAIR, author of "The Industrial Republic" and "The Jungle." A unique fragment of literature—unlike anything else in our present day. It is the story of an English musician who, wrecked upon a desert island, lives for twenty years alone, and, while yet in the body, becomes cognizant of a spiritual world. Frontispiece, 50 cents.

Hymns Every Child Should Know

Edited by DOLORES BACON. A really unique collection, in a series recognized as the best possible for children's reading. Net, 90 cents; postage 9 cents.

Fiji and Its Possibilities

By BEATRICE GRIMSHAW. A most interesting geographical document and revelation, setting forth the history, government, trades and customs of the people. Uniform with "The Opening of Tibet" in our Geographical Library. Net, $3.00; postage 24 cents.

The Near East

By an author whose work—and he has written some thirty or forty books—has been conspicuously successful. Such masters as Zola, William Black and Alphonse Daudet have expressed their regard and admiration for his work. "The Near East" is the first authentic statement concerning the lawless regions of the Balkan states—with adventures most graphic and most stirring. Uniform with "The Opening of Tibet" in our Geographical Library. Net, $3.00; postage 23 cents.

Memoirs of an Arabian Princess

Translated by LIONEL STRACHEY. A picture of the education and life of an Arabian woman, which is most interesting and unusual. The author's career during her younger days in the royal harem at Zanzibar, the subsequent escape from her country, and later marriage to a German merchant, makes a wonderful story and a real romance. Uniform with "The Memoirs of Countess Potocka." Thirty-two illustrations. Net, $2.50; postage 19 cents.

The Tracks We Tread

By G. B. LANCASTER, author of "The Spur" and "Sons O' Men." A compelling narrative of the land of sheep and strong men, by a genius in whose writings the conventionalities of civilization are unknown. $1.50.

By Edward Childs Carpenter

Author of "Captain Courtesy"

Cloth, 12mo, Decorative Cover stamped in Gold. Decorative title page and five color illustrations by ELENORE PLAISTED ABBOTT.

IN this new volume, Mr. Carpenter has followed up his "Captain Courtesy" with a book of stirring interest. The scene is laid in Louisiana; the hero is a French refugee. The rare character drawing of a man half Brummel, half soldier of fortune; the portrayal of a proud woman's love, and the atmosphere of romanticism throughout the pages are elements that point to a splendid success for the book.
